Jimmy White, Superintendent of Highways met with the Board of Selectmen Monday night to go over the many drainage and street problems that are confronting the town of Wilmington.

Selectmen Hagerty, DeFelice and Kidder asked numerous questions in regards to certain problems and offered varied solutions. Mr. White answered all questions to the best of his knowledge and remarked that appropriations or allocations for many of these problems are inadequate and are "shaved to the bone."

An hour and fifteen minutes found the problem without any solutions until Nicky DeFelice observed that we have a Town Engineer and that he should be handed these problems to solve.

It was finally agreed that the Town Engineer would be consulted and possible solutions worked out.

This paper agrees with DeFelice that the Town Engineer should study these problems, and also feels that he should have been there Monday night. The meeting may have proceeded much faster and the press may have had more information to pass on to the public before the Health Board came in for another one of their 'Executive Sessions.'

..... 'The Federal gasoline tax has gone up another cent from three to four cents per gallon in order to keep the Federal highway program going. But the increase is only for a 22-month period. After that the tax will drop back again to three cents. However, the odds are to 10 to 1 that 22 months from now, and 22 years from now, motorists will still be paying that additional one cent tax. If you have any doubt about it just consider the fact that the Federal gas tax was first imposed during World War II strictly as a temporary war measure. But was it dropped after the conflict? No, indeed. Instead it was increased and now is being increased again. It all adds up to the fact that there is no such thing as a temporary tax---at least, not as far as Uncle Sam is concerned.'

..... 'Although the committee on national education policies originally rejected a resolution advocating the use of force, when needed, to maintain classroom discipline, the American Federation of Teachers has now given its approval. The teachers said, however, that force was not a desirable thing in itself. They said it just sometimes could not be avoided.'

..... 'About a half a century ago, it was necessary for the government to put clamps upon arrogant heads of business. It has now come to pass where public sentiment, is reaching the conclusion that the same sort of clamps will have to be applied to labor bosses who practice high-handed tactics.'

..... 'A North Carolina editor says about the only difference between an ordinary bum and one of those so-called beatniks is that the ordinary bum is either ashamed of his status or is indifferent. The beatnik, on the other hand, is proud of his low spot on the totem pole of human society.'

RAILROADS SEEK TO END $500 MILLION "FEATHERBEDDING"

A stormy showdown between management and labor over the $500 million annual featherbedding waste on the nation's railroads is imminent. Reader's Digest reports in an article in the November issue.

U.S. railroads are determined to modernize the work rules dating from 40 and more years ago, according to the article by Alfred Steinberg. These rules require surplus men on trains, erect jurisdictional barriers between various work groups and otherwise promote waste and inefficiency among 200,000 operating employees, the article points out.

Contract negotiations on this explosive issue begin after November 15.

To find out to what extent featherbedding exists on the railroads, Mr. Steinberg rode locomotives, wandered about yards and terminals and talked to railroaders themselves.

"There can be no question that featherbedding abounds wherever one looks," Mr. Steinberg declares.

The toll, he adds, is measured in higher passenger fares and freight rates and dwindling business for the long-troubled railroad industry.

The fireman who has no fires to stoke or boilers to tend on the modern diesel locomotive is cited by the Digest article as a primary example of featherbedding in practice.

Another obsolete rule gives each engine-crew member a basis day's wage for every 100 miles he travels. This rule dates from 1919, Mr. Steinberg reports, and results in such 'high pay for short hours' as an engineer's collecting 1.43 day's wages for clipping off 143 miles in two hours on the Denver Zephyr, and a Pennsylvania engineer's collecting 4½ days' pay, or about $100, for making a 452-mile roundtrip between New York City and Washington, D.C. in a single day.

A companion featherbed rule splits the nation's railroads into divisions 100 or so miles long, with crews barred from crossing these borders. Thus, the Digest says, eight different engine crews are required to get the 20th Century Limited over the 16 hour course between New York City and Chicago.

To an outsider, many of the decisions of the National Railroad Adjustment Board in disputes over rules fencing off 'road work' from 'yard work' bear a 'tinge of lunacy,' Mr. Steinberg writes.

He cites, for instance, how a road crew was awarded an extra day's pay for moving a train a few cars lengths in a yard and how a yard crew got an extra day's pay for helping a train through snow just outside yard limits.

Correction of these rules, the article states, lies 'in a greater sense of responsibility to the public on the part of the Railroad Brotherhoods.''

Mr. Steinberg believes that a key factor in the forthcoming showdown talks will be pressure from the public, now grown 'sick and tired of costly wasteful featherbedding.'

The Digest article is titled "It's Showdown Time for Featherbedding on the Railroads."

WILMINGTON YOUTH CANTEEN

Two special activites of the Wilmington Youth Canteen were held this past week. In both cases, participation was beyond expectation.

Last Saturday evening, about 160 youngsters listened and danced at the Wildwood School, to the popular rock 'n roll combo, 'Nite-Trains'. Approximately 75 roller skaters from the Canteen enjoyed themselves last Monday at the Hi-Hat Rink in Lowell. Meanwhile, plans are under way for the Halloween Open House of the Wilmington Youth Canteen on Saturday, October 31st.

At a recent meeting of the adult committee of the Canteen it was voted to allow youth members to use the Canteen on both Friday and Saturday nights regardless of age groups. It was also voted to acquire three picnic tables and benches for use inside the Canteen Building.

RAILROAD FEATHERBEDDING:

$500,000,000 LOSS

TO THE NATION—INCLUDING YOU—EVERY YEAR

Featherbedding on the railroads — pay for work not done or not needed — is costing the American people the shocking total of more than $500,000,000 a year.

You pay for it every time you shop, because featherbedding costs are hidden in the price of everything you buy.

Obsolete union work rules, involving the railroad operating employees, are responsible for this gigantic burden. Right now, for instance, these rules require every diesel locomotive to carry a fireman — even though diesels have no fires to stoke, no boilers to tend.

The forthcoming negotiations between the railroads and the unions are urgently important to the whole nation.

In asking the unions to drop these featherbedding rules, all the railroads ask for is a fair day's work for a fair day's pay.

On Monday morning, October 19, nine girl scout leaders met at the home of Mrs. Connie Widger, Fairview Avenue.

The discussion included the proposed changes of the by-laws, such as, that a District Co-ordinator and Neighborhood Chairman, after three years in office, would not be eligible for those offices until one year had lapsed. These changes, suggested on a neighborhood basis, will be brought up for discussion at the Council meeting, November 4, at 7:45 p.m. at the Y.M.C.A. in Lowell and then voted on at the Annual Council Meeting in January.

At the November Council Meeting, the program will include a 'Roundup Reunion' with those who attended the roundup in Colorado, showing pictures and relating their experiences.

Another subject discussed at this meeting of scout leaders was the need for more leaders which is urgent.

Anyone interested in becoming a leader, should contact Mrs. Widger, at OL8-3656 for further information.

THE OTHER DAY

We were told a few things about the amazing electronic transistor. It seems to have revolutionized the world of electronics, and when something revolutionizes a field which in itself revolutionized man's way of life, how do you estimate its importance? We're told that the surface hasn't even been scratched so far when thinking of the things that are still to come from this electronic midget.

It actually isn't any larger than a single pea, yet can do the work of electronic vacuum or radio tubes, some of which were bigger than an old 100 watt lamp. It is hardier than old style tubes, lighter, and requires no heater current, and is far more economical to operate, as well as providing 2 to 3 times more power output.

The most common uses so far have been in the vastly improved hearing aids, and the tiny radios, but in addition it makes the impossible become possible in hundreds of industrial and military uses. The U.S. Signal Corp has a transistor WRIST radio as standard equipment now that can receive over a distance of more than 40 miles, as just one example of immediate uses.

We too put to work for you the latest advances in our field, but that's only one of the reasons why we keep our customers so well satisfied.
